CHURCHILL'S TRIBUTE TO RUSSIA
Hint of New Front in France

BROADCASTING from the Citadel, Quebec, last night, Mr. Churchill paid a generous tribute to the sacrifices of the Russian forces, and explained that there had been no Russian representative at the Quebec Conference because it was largely concerned with inflaming the war against Japan, with whom the Soviet Government had a five years' treaty of non-aggression.

Speaking of the second front, he said that he looked forward to the day when British and American Armies will cross the Channel in great force; but he declined to say whether that day is near or far.

Mr. Churchill said:—"At the beginning of July I began to feel the need for a new meeting with the President of the United States of America, and also for another conference of our Joint Staffs, and we were all delighted when, by a happy inspiration, President Roosevelt suggested that Quebec should be the scene, and when the Governor-General and the Government of Canada offered us princely hospitality. Certainly no more fitting and splendid setting could have been chosen for a meeting of those who guide the war policy of the two great Western Democracies at this cardinal moment in the second World War, than we have here in the Plains of Abraham, in the Château Frontenac and the ramparts of the citadel of Quebec, from the midst of which I speak to you now.

"Here, above all, in the capital and heart of French Canada, it is right to think of the French people in their agony, to set on foot new measures for their deliverance and to send them a message across the ocean that we have not forgotten them nor all the services which France has rendered to culture and civilisation in the march of the human intellect and to the rights of man. For 40 years or more I have believed in the greatness and virtue of France. Often in dark and baffling days I have not wavered, and since the Anglo-French Agreement of 1904 I have always served and worked actively with them in the service of good causes.

A MESSAGE

"It was, therefore, to me a keen satisfaction that words of hope, of comfort, of recognition should be spoken not only to those Frenchmen who, outside Hitler's clutches, march in arms with us, but also to the broad masses of the French nation who await the day when they can free and cleanse their land from the torment and shame of German subjugation.

"I have also had the advantage of conferring with the Prime Minister of Canada, Mr. Mackenzie King, the experienced statesman who led the Dominion instantly and unitedly into the war. I was sitting on several occasions with its Cabinet, and the British and Canadian staffs have been over the whole ground of the war together. The contributions which Canada has made to the combined effort of the British Commonwealth and Empire in these tremendous times has deeply touched the heart of the mother country and all the other members of our widespread family of States and races.

GENEROUS ACT

"From the darkest days the Canadian Army, growing stronger year by year, has played an indispensable part in guarding our British homeland from invasion. Now it is fighting with distinction in wider and in widening fields. Last, but not least, Canada has relieved Great Britain of what would otherwise have been a debt for these munitions of no less than two thousand million dollars—a course which was dictated by no law. It sprang into perfect freedom from sentiment and tradition and in a generous resolve to serve the future of mankind.

"I only wish, indeed, that my other duties, which are exacting, allowed me to travel still farther afield, and tell Australians, New Zealanders and South Africans to their face how we feel towards them for all they have done and are resolved to do.

SOVIET RUSSIA

"But there is another great nation with whom we have made a solemn treaty. We have made a 20 years' treaty of good-will and mutual aid with Soviet Russia. You may be sure that we British are resolved to do our utmost to make that good with all our strength and national steadiness. It would not have been suitable for Russia to be represented at this Anglo-American conference, which, apart from dealing with the immediate operations which are intermingled and interwoven with armed forces in the Mediterranean and elsewhere, was largely, if not mainly, concerned with heating and inflaming the war against Japan, with whom the Soviet Government has a five years' treaty of non-aggression.

"It would have been an embarrassing invitation for us to send, but nothing is nearer to the wishes of President Roosevelt and myself than to have a threefold meeting with Marshal Stalin. If that has not yet taken place it is certainly not because we have not tried our best or have not been willing to lay aside every impediment, and undertake further immense journeys for that purpose. It is because Marshal Stalin—in direct command of the victorious Russian armies—cannot at the present time leave the battle-fronts upon which he is conducting operations of vital consequence not only to Russia, which is the object of the ferocious German attack, but also for the common cause of all the United Nations.

MORE MEETINGS

"To judge by the latest news from the Russian battle-fronts, Marshal Stalin is not wasting his time. The entire British Empire send him our salute on this brilliant summer campaign, and on the victories of Kharkov and Taganrog, by which so much Russian soil has been redeemed, and so many hundreds of thousands of its invaders wiped out. The President and I will persevere in our efforts to reach Marshal Stalin.

"In the meantime, it seems most necessary and urgent that a conference of the British, United States

Asked about the possibilities of a tripartite conference between the United States, Britain and Russia, President Roosevelt said yesterday in Washington that matters were coming along pretty well, but he refused to comment on the possible date or location of such a conference.

Aged Couple Shot Dead in Co. Down

ROBERT CLELAND, junior (51), Ballyworthy, Hillsborough Co. Down, at a special court in Lisburn last night, was remanded on a charge of having murdered his foster parents, Robert and Margaret Cleland, both over 70 years, who were shot that morning.

At an inquest on the couple it was stated that at 11 a.m. a man who was working in a field half a mile from the farm heard four shots fired. He went to investigate, and saw Robert Cleland, junior, walking in a field carrying a shotgun. Nearby he found the two bodies.

A doctor said that death was due to gunshot wounds.

Joshua Harrison said that Robert Cleland, junior, was adopted by the deceased couple 28 years ago.

Roosevelt Calls Columnist "Chronic Liar"

President Roosevelt yesterday, in Washington, labelled as "a chronic liar" a newspaper columnist who declared that Mr. Cordell Hull and other members of the State Department were anti-Russian.

The President did not name the columnist, but he said that Mr. Hull's remarks on the subject—in referring to an attack by Drew Pearson, the American columnist—were "more than polite."

Mr. Hull had refuted statements by Pearson, who contributes regularly to a Washington "merry-go-round" feature, that he and other Ligh State Department officials had opposed the Soviet Union and wished Russia to be bled white.

"I desire," said Mr. Hull, "to brand these statements as monstrous and diabolical falsehoods."—Reuter.

Swedish Fishermen Not to Go to Sea

Swedish fishermen have refused to put to sea unless the Swedish Government can assure them that they will not meet the same fate as the two ships sunk by German naval forces last week, Stockholm radio said yesterday.

In a joint statement they declare that no Swedish fishing vessel can at present consider itself safe to fish outside the three-mile limit.—(Reuter.)

Danish Army and Navy Disarmed

According to a German Foreign Office spokesman who was quoted yesterday by the German News Agency, the Danish Army and Navy have been disarmed—"without any incidents worth mentioning." The report also stated that the King and Queen are still at Sorgenfri Castle, near Copenhagen.

"The Danish warship Nils Juel (3,800 tons coastal defence ship) has returned to its base after being ordered to do so by a German bomber and also by order of the Danish Admiral Wedel," said the German News Agency.

Bernard Valery, Reuter's Special Correspondent, cabled last night from Stockholm that a Danish submarine reached the Swedish port of Malmoe yesterday.

The Swedish Government has announced that steps will be taken to care for Danish civilians or military personnel. As political refugees they will be interned until employment and homes can be arranged. The view was taken that the Danes were not from a belligerent country. —(Reuter and Associated Press.)

School Sandwiches To-day

The pupils in Dublin's national schools to-day will sample for the first time the cheese sandwiches which are to be given them under the Corporation's new school meals plan.

Between 10 a.m. and noon seven vans, belonging to Mr. Thomas Lawlor, of Naas, will leave the firm's premises in Temple lane carrying 32,000 sandwiches to the schools throughout the city.

All day yesterday a staff of 80 workers were busy on the first consignment, and, by the end of next week, the scheme will be in perfect order, for school principals will report to Mr. Lawlor their requirements, and various adjustments as to quantities may have to be made.

The children will have jam sandwiches one day and cheese sandwiches the next; 2,000 large pan loaves are delivered daily, and 500 lb. of butter are used every day. The cheese, of which 1,000 lbs. are used daily, comes up once a week from Mitchellstown, and 1,000 lb. of jam are used on the alternate days.

Some schools receive as many as 5,000 sandwiches every day and others as few as 30.

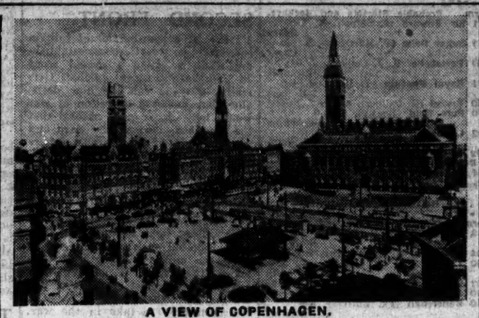
It is anticipated that many more city schools will come into the scheme by the end of the year.

Hair Dressers Not To Strike

There will be no strike of hairdressers' assistants in Dublin. Following a conference at the Department of Industry and Commerce yesterday between representatives of the Master Hairdressers' Association, who employ the greater proportion of trade union labour, and the men's union, it was agreed that the 8s. bonus should be paid next Saturday, the payment to cover two weeks.

The Master Hairdressers' Association has come to no decision yet regarding an increase in charges, a reporter was told last night. Last Sunday, however, the Master Hairdressers' Guild decided to increase prices by 25 per cent. all-round.

An assistant stated last night that if prices are increased the employees will not benefit to any great extent by the bonus. Actually, they may suffer a loss, he feared; for tipping generally will almost inevitably cease.



A VIEW OF COPENHAGEN.

"Allied Attacks Imminent"
SECOND-FRONT PREPARATIONS ON CONSIDERABLE SCALE

ALLIED attacks may be imminent on Southern Italy, or Sardinia and Corsica, a German News Agency commentator suggested last night.

There was no doubt, he said, the British had made preparations on a considerable scale for a second front in Europe.

"The concentration of British and American shipping and many landing craft in the ports of eastern Tunisia and the east coast of Sicily —repeatedly attacked by German bombers — and the movements of Allied warships in the Mediterranean give a certain indication as to the intentions of the American Commander-in-Chief. Certain developments in the British Isles, the concentration of large formations of airborne and other specialised troops in south-eastern England, and the many ships now crowding ports on the south coast must all be taken into consideration."

Discussing possible Allied attack on Sardinia and Corsica, the commentator said this would involve greater risks, since it would require considerable naval forces. He added: "The formation of a French Army in the area of Oran must be noted."

BOMB RAIDS

Reuter's special correspondent at Allied HQ., North Africa, cables that more crippling blows against the Italian transport system were made on Monday, Civita Vecchia, port of Rome, 40 miles north-west of the capital, being one of the main targets for air operations. Another medium bomber raid was directed against Aversa railway junction, 8 miles north of Naples.

A force of from 70 to 75 Axis fighters he says, made an onslaught on the attacking Marauders and their Lightning escort. Seventeen of the Axis 'planes were shot down.

Flying Fortresses of the North-west African Air Force attacked the airfield of Viterbo, 40 miles north of Rome. "Heavy damage was done and two Axis aircraft were shot down."

Railway targets in Southern Italy were again attacked by medium and light bombers and fighter bombers in daylight. Fighter bombers also made daylight attacks on communications in Sardinia. Fifteen Allied aircraft were lost in all these operations.—(Reuter.)

£400 Diamond in Waste Paper

A diamond worth £400 is believed to have been sent out from a leading Dublin shop last week in its waste-paper collection. It had been placed in an envelope for greater safety, and is thought to have been thrown in among the waste-paper by someone who did not know what it contained.

Waste-paper merchants to whom it was thought the paper might have been sent were informed, and asked to look through their deliveries, but without result. One of the merchants spent several days on the search, and every scrap of paper in the store was carefully unfolded, but without result. Inquiries are still being made.

Struck by 'Bus

Patrick King (6½), Upper Sean McDermott street, Dublin, who was knocked down by a 'bus in Upper O'Connell street on Monday, is still in a critical condition in Jervis Street Hospital. The boy's mother states that she was not—as reported in yesterday's issue—selling papers near the scene of the accident, and has never sold papers.

British Land Small Force in Italy

It was learned in Berlin from military sources at midday yesterday, according to German Overseas Radio, that a small British force made a landing at the tip of Southern Italy on Sunday last. "The enemy force involved consisted of some 400 men, who landed on the tip of the Italian boot, south-east of Reggio. Appropriate counter-measures resulted in the complete destruction of the landing force.

"Only about 30 men managed to penetrate into the interior of the country, and it is considered that, although they may roam among the mountains for a time, they do not constitute a danger.

"Military experts are of the opinion that this minor landing manœuvre was carried out to prepare a large landing bridgehead. This view is confirmed by the fact that the British troops carried extensive radio equipment, which they tried to set up immediately after landing."

The German News Agency version of the landing at first said that 300 men were "roaming in the mountains and being taken prisoner one by one." Later the Agency reverted to the earlier figure of 30 given by German Overseas Radio.

Paris Radio, commenting on the presence of barges at Augusta said: "The German Command considers this base as a possible springboard for further landing operations. German bombers are, therefore, relentlessly attacking shipping and harbour installations there, as well as rail communications."

Many Towns Fall in Big Advances
SOVIETS NOW 45 MILES FROM SMOLENSK

MARSHAL STALIN, Supreme Commander of the Russian forces, announced in an Order of the Day, broadcast by Moscow Radio last night, that Russian troops have entered the Northern Ukraine.

In an earlier Order of the Day he announced the capture of the town of Yelnya—"the most important strong point in the Smolensk direction."

The Red Army by capturing Yelnya, on the River Desna, are now only 45 miles south-east of Smolensk, the Germans' main base for the Central Russian fighting.

The Supreme Commander's first Order of the Day stated:—"Troops of the western front recently broke through the strongly fortified line of enemy defences, and, developing the offensive in the Smolensk region, yesterday captured the town of Yelnya, a large road centre of strategical importance, and the most important strong point in the Smolensk direction."

SOVIET CLAIMS

Marshal Stalin, in a later Order of the Day addressed to Army General Rokossovsky, stated that troops of the central front, having broken through the strongly fortified German defence zone in the area of Sevsk, by a swift blow, on August 30, occupied the towns of Glukhov and Rylsk, entering the Northern Ukraine.

Rylsk is 40 miles south of Sevsk, on the Seim River, and Guikhov is nearly 40 miles west of Rylsk.

Last night's Soviet communiqué, which also announced the capture of these towns, said that recently Russian troops of the western front in the area of Smolensk, after breaking through the strongly fortified German defences over a front of 31 miles, advanced from 9½ to 18½ miles. In four days of fighting in the Yelnya area they occupied more than 170 inhabited localities. In the Sevsk direction, in four days of fighting, they occupied more than 200 inhabited localities, having made a break-through over a front of 60 miles. West and south-west of Kharkov the Russians continued their offensive and occupied several inhabited localities.

DOUBLE THREAT

Through fresh gaps in the southern wing of the German front, the Red Army is driving into the Donetz Basin in a double threat to Stalino and the port of Mariupol, says Reuter. Fast moving cavalry, together with mobile columns, have already covered more than half of the 65 miles which separate Mariupol from Taganrog.

The whole of the German position east of the Dnieper is now laid bare to several big Soviet drives.

Captain Sertorius, military commentator of the German News Service, said last night:—"It must be stressed that the German Command is husbanding its forces on the eastern front, regardless of consequences, and that to achieve this territories have over and over again been abandoned, with the result that it has been possible to concentrate considerable forces on other fronts."

LENINGRAD

Following a sudden and heavy artillery bombardment of Leningrad by the Ge mans; disclosed by Soviet newspapers, massed Russian bombers unloosed a deluge of steel and high explosive on the German positions.

Marshal Zhukov, who co-ordinated the Red Army's two victories of last winter—Stalingrad and Leningrad—is now in the Ukraine, it was disclosed yesterday, says Associated Press. Despatches reported that he attended a meeting at Kharkov with Lieutenant-General Nikita Khrushchev, Secretary-General of the Communist Party in the Ukraine, and the three front commanders, to celebrate the recapture of Kharkov. The announcement of his presence at Kharkov was the first report of his whereabouts since the break-through at Leningrad.

"It is clear," says Reuter's Military Correspondent, "that the whole German front is crumbling. Orel, Kharkov and Taganrog were merely portents of bigger developments in the offing. Bryansk and Poltava are already threatened, and now Smolensk—one of the greatest prizes of all—is almost within Russian grasp. One feels the possibility of a German retreat all along the line. The question is will they be able to get behind the Dnieper in time."

Sweets May Be Controlled Soon

Sweets may be brought under price-control in Eire from early next month, the Irish Times understands.

The period would coincide with that of increased supplies, as the 1943 allocation of sugar to manufacturers begins to come in. The subject of a control is said to be a common topic among the travellers in the trade, and, writes our reporter, since the emergency began, there has never been a surer straw to indicate the blowing of Governmental winds.

What form will the control take? "It would be difficult, but not impossible, to fix the prices of the hundred and one different varieties," a retailer said yesterday. "But what is more likely is that we shall be prohibited from making up 'mixtures' in the future."

"A new and complex phase of the 'black market'" was predicted by another shopkeeper.

Development Plan for Waterford

WATERFORD, like all other cities has suffered from unregulated development. This is an opportunity to ensure that in the future it will avail itself to the full of its great natural advantages, stated Mr. Denis A. Hegarty, City Manager and Town Clerk, when, on the eve of his departure to take up duty as County Manager of Sligo and Leitrim, he submitted to the General Purposes Committee of the Waterford Corporation a report on the proposed town planning scheme for Waterford.

Mr. Frank Gibney, Town Planning Consultant, attended the meeting, and explained the proposals in general. It was decided to call a statutory meeting of the City Council to adopt a planning resolution.

It is proposed to extend the city on the north side of the River Suir, incorporating portion of County Kilkenny over the townlands of Christendom, Abbeylands, Rockshire, Ballybrobin, Newrath, Kilmurray and Killaspy; and on the south side of the River Suir, the townlands of Grantstown, Williamstown, Grange Upper, Kilcohan, Kilbarry, Lisduggan and Gracedieu.

The built-up area of the city will provide for a general urban zone, extending for about a mile radius from the city centre. Development extending beyond that will be in a series of neighbouring units, each provided with their shopping centres, churches, schools, playing fields, clinics, etc.

The open spaces provision provides for parks and playing fields at Kilbarry and also at Hill Park, North of the River Suir the Little Island, comprising 311 acres, will provide for a botanic gardens and an open-air folklore museum.

The main city thoroughfares will be treated as parkway drives, with special provision for the entire length of road from Waterford to Tramore.

A SECOND BRIDGE

The plan also provides for a second bridge over the River Suir, about a half-mile eastwards of the existing bridge. The existing railway will be incorporated in a new embankment on the north side, and a future railway station erected at high level at the new bridgehead. The site suggested for a new Waterford Cathedral is that of the old jail at Ballybricken, which dominates the city. It is proposed to clear the old buildings surrounding the site, so as to form terraced gardens towards the river. A new industrial area is planned on the north side of the River Suir and east of Ferrybank, upon the flat lands of Christendom, on which there would be new docks,

Community Feeding Centres Reopening

Many Dublin community feeding centres will be opening shortly for the winter, and a heavy season's work is anticipated.

"There was a slight falling-off in the attendance last July when we closed down, but it was not for that reason that we closed," a representative of one of the city kitchens told an Irish Times reporter yesterday. "We closed simply because our staff had to have a holiday" she added.

With the rise in price of potatoes, and the shortage of most vegetables, Dublin housewives will probably find it more difficult than ever to provide an adequate mid-day meal for their families, and will probably be forced to rely more on the community feeding centres. The provision of meals at the kitchens will be more difficult in the coming winter, owing to the lack of fats, sugar, oatmeal and even sausages.

Hackney Fares May Be Dearer

If the 25 per cent. reduction in their petrol ration, which came into force in March of this year, is not returned, hackney owners will be obliged to raise their fares to cover the deficit.

The Irish Times learned yesterday that consultations are taking place at present between hackney owners and the Minister for Supplies regarding the restoration of the "cut."

Fares will not be increased as a result of the higher cost of motor spirit, for the rise is relatively small, and can make little difference to profits.

Bogdan Filov, Bulgarian Premier, has had a second meeting with former Bulgarian Prime Ministers, the German News Service stated last night.

THIS PLAN WILL BRING YOU
£240 A YEAR FOR LIFE FROM AGE 55

Most men have to provide for their own future. They have no rich relative to take the burden from their shoulders, and no business pension scheme to fall back upon. They stand or fall on their own efforts.

Are you satisfied with the progress you yourself are making? Have you saved anything like enough to justify a belief that at 55 years of age you will be in a position to take things more easily? What about your family should you, on whom they depend, be taken from them? The plan about to be explained, if adopted without further delay, will relieve you of all anxiety about the matter.

It is the best, the easiest and the surest way of providing both for your own later years and for your dependents.

Assuming your age to be 35 and you would like to provide for a private income of £240 a year for life commencing at age 55, this is how the plan works out. You make monthly, quarterly, half-yearly or yearly deposits of an agreed sum to the Sun Life of Canada, the great Annuity Company, and you get in return:

£240 a Year for Life
At 55 years of age the Sun Life of Canada will start paying you an income for life of £240 per annum, and you'll receive this income every year as long as you live. Or, if you prefer it, you can have £3,525, plus profits, in lieu of the pension.

Income Tax Saved
On every payment to the Company you receive a rebate of Income Tax—a concession which will save you a considerable sum during the period. This is additional profit on the transaction.

£2,000 for Your Family
Should you not live to the age of 55, £2,000, plus accumulated profits, will be paid to your family.

Any Age, Any Amount
Though 35 and £240 a year for life have been quoted here, the plan may be varied to suit other ages and to provide larger or smaller incomes. WHATEVER AMOUNT YOU CAN SAVE (FROM £1 A MONTH) FOR YOUR OWN AND FAMILY'S FUTURE, this plan is the safest and most profitable you can adopt.

The Plan is Flexible
Supposing that after making payment for two years or more you found yourself temporarily unable to continue, there is provision to help you. The Company would, in that event, automatically advance your overdue payments and keep the plan in force, allowing you a certain time to bring your payments to date. The longer the plan has been in force the longer this time would be.

£215,000,000 Assets
The Sun Life of Canada has assets of over £215,000,000. It is the largest Company of the British Empire transacting Life Assurance solely. Do not hesitate, therefore, to send for particulars of this plan, which may mean great things for you and yours.

New Make Up Technique Scores with Active Women

Active women—and nowadays that means most women—are all enthusiastic about the new make up method which banishes that smart woman's nightmare—shiny skin. They've found that liquid make up foundation stays matt through the hardest day.

'SHINY SKIN' BUGBEAR BANISHED

BECAUSE the ordinary face cream base is itself shiny, make up in which it is used can't be expected to stay matt once the powder surface wears off. Every woman knew this, and the out-of-doors woman knew that, in warm weather especially the powder surface wore off all too quickly and enforced on her the necessity for frequent 'repair work' with a powder puff.

Until recently there was no remedy for this, but the introduction in America of a liquid foundation has solved the problem. The new make up technique quickly swept the United States and since its introduction into Ireland has been steadily growing in popularity as women who cared about their appearance (and what woman doesn't?) discovered its many advantages.

The new powder base—Miner's Liquid Make Up Foundation—is quickly and easily applied, goes on smoothly, hides minor skin blemishes completely, and stays matt. One application lasts all day, even under trying conditions. Leading chemists now have supplies, in five shades—Naturel, Rachel, Dark Rachel, Blonde Tan and Brunette Tan—at 8d and 1/9.

Fair Rent Tribunals for North

Moving the second reading of the Rent Restriction Amendment Bill at Stormont yesterday, Mr. Lowry, Minister of Home Affairs, said that a situation had arisen with regard to the exaction of rents, which was startling, and by no means creditable to those taking advantage of people. The matter of profiteering was of extreme urgency. There were 12,451 persons from across the Channel and Eire who had residence permits for Belfast. After the air raids in 1941, his Department was responsible for 67,800 billetees in reception areas. In addition, there were 5,643 who had come from various towns across the Channel. By May, 1942, the number in the reception areas had fallen to 18,972, and by May, 1943, the total was 11,464. In the present month it had fallen to 10,071. From the latter total they might deduct 4,000 people representing cross-Channel evacuees, which meant that all but 6,000 of the people who had left Belfast had returned.

Mr. W. Lowry (Minister of Home Affairs) announced that the Government had decided to appoint a Commission to examine the Rent Restriction code. It had also been decided to consider means for the extension of power to requisition houses. The question of profiteering in rents was one of extreme urgency, he said, quoting the case of a woman occupying an owner who had let three houses to 50 persons, and was drawing £8 5s. a week. Under the new Bill, tenants who felt that they had a grievance about rents would have the right of appeal to Fair Rent Tribunals.

Mr. J. Beattie (Labour) said that he knew the Government was the political victim of the landlords and the landed gentry. It was bunkum to say that the materials were not available for building houses, he said, pointing out that Eire was building.

Mr. Thornton (Ui.), describing the Bill as inadequate to meet the situation, said the material was available for building if the Government really had the will to meet the situation.

The Bill was read a second time.

Seaman Describes Assault

Patrick Geraghty (36), John Garland (21), and Charles Brown (20), all of no fixed address, were remanded until Friday next by District Justice Lennon in Dublin yesterday, charged with assaulting Hugh Drake, seaman, Beachmount Cottage, Cove, and robbing him of £60 at Sackville place on August 6th last.

Drake, who spent 19 days in Jervis Street Hospital, said that he was spoken to by two women (i.e. O'Connell street) but declined to have anything to do with them, and was taking a short cut through Sackville place to the missionary hall, where he was staying, when he was set upon. When he recovered consciousness he was taken to Store Street Garda Station, and then to Jervis Street Hospital. His wallet, containing £57 or £58, was stolen. He identified Geraghty as one of his assailants.

Turf Workers' Wages

Standard Wage and Bonus Orders have been made for workers, members of the Workers' Union of Ireland, employed on turf contracts by the South of Ireland Asphalt Company: Checkers, £3 to £3 10/- per week; gangers, 1/7 per hour; labourers, 1/5; stampers, 1/6; watchmen, 7/6.

The bonus of 5/- per week dates from April 19th, and is payable to lockers-on, tippers and elevator-drivers.

Newmarket Card

TO-DAY'S Nunthorpe Stakes at Newmarket promises to provide a thrilling race between the leading sprinters, Sugar Palm, unbeaten this season, has shown his brilliance over both 5 and 6 furlongs. Last year's winner, Linklater, is a five-furlong specialist, and was only beaten a neck by Sugar Palm at equal weights recently. Portobello is now back to form and should run well, while the Northern candidate, Royal Phoenix, may also be concerned with the finish. On his splendid record this season, Sugar Palm deserves the vote. Linklater is suggested as an each way bet.

Umiddad, second in the Derby and Ribbon, second in the Oaks, will meet in the Whepstead Stakes. Lord Rosebery's filly was most unlucky in the Oaks, and is taken to beat the colt here. Selections:—

Found a Cask of Porter

Charged with stealing, by finding, a cask containing 14 gallons of extra stout, value £3 3/-, property of Thomas Halligan, Skryne, Co. Meath, Thomas Boylan (28), coal porter, Commons street, Dublin, described finding the cask on the Navan road and putting it on his lorry, telling people around that he was taking it to Donnelly's yard. When he got there he was told to take the cask away. He gave it to Frank Cullen, Coburg place, who was charged with receiving it knowing it to have been stolen. The latter said that during tea a crowd of men came from Donnelly's yard and "made use of the porter." He drank some of it himself.

Both the accused men were remanded by Senior District Justice Hannas until Tuesday next.

Jail and £500 Fine

Thomas Byrne, of Omeath, Co. Louth, who did not appear, was sentenced, at Belfast yesterday, to 18 months' imprisonment and fined £500, or a further 12 months, in a Customs prosecution for dealing in 450 gross iron shods and 14 cwt. boot rivets. It was stated the application would be made to have his bail of £1,000 estreated. For Byrne, Mr. H. A. Rutherford, said he pleaded guilty. He was a cattle dealer in a small way and had lost £400 in this transaction.

DISCOVERIES AT LOUGH GUR

That Lough Gur, Co. Limerick, was the site of a considerable settlement during the Late Stone Age and the Early Bronze Age has now been definitely established. A further season's excavation there, carried out under the direction of Dr. Sean P. O'Riordan, Professor of Archæology, University College, Cork, brought to light hundreds of fragments of pottery, worked flints, stone beads and other objects, which gave evidence that the houses were contemporary with those excavated on other sites in the vicinity, and the investigations provided further proof of the intensity of the occupation of the area during the second millennium B.C.

Professor O'Riordan was assisted by a large number of students and graduates of the University Colleges of Dublin and Cork, and by a small number of workmen. The expedition was financed by University College, Cork.

Two habitation sites were investigated on Knockadoon, the peninsula in the lake, on the lands of Mr. R. Ryan, T.D., who readily gave permission for the excavations, which have been carried out there over several seasons. One of the sites evidenced the existence of a house built over the position of an earlier wooden one. The other site was that of a stone-built hut which was constructed against the upright face of a cliff.

Four Years of War

This day four years ago the Germans invaded Poland, and the issue of a world war versus a localised war hung in the balance. It was not left undecided for long: within another two days Great Britain and France had announced their intention to abide by their pledges, and Europe realised that the terrible years of 1914-1918 were about to repeat themselves. Months, however, passed without any repetition of the fierce and bloody encounters which had been characteristic of the earlier war. Poland, indeed, had passed under German—and Russian—sway; but it was not until the German Army and Air Force, in what must rank among the most rapid campaigns of history, had overrun Denmark and Norway, the Low Countries and France that the period of the so-called "phoney war" came to an end, and Great Britain saw clearly that she was face to face with the biggest crisis of her history. People still speculate on what would happen if Herr Hitler's armies had turned to the north, rather than southwards—if they had concentrated all their might upon the invasion of England, instead of hammering home their victory over France. Historians in all probability will agree that by that decision the Germans lost their chance to win the war outright; for Britain at the time was helpless. She ...d, to be sure, the almost inestimable promise of American support; but the American factories were not yet converted to war production, and the half-trained, negligibly armed defenders of Britain would have stood a poor chance. Those were black days for Britain. Blacker days were to come. Even when the menace of a German invasion by sea and air had passed, she had not merely to endure the tortures of a bombing campaign such as no nation previously had experienced, but also to watch the rapid encroachment of German—then reinforced by Italian—power over the greater part of continental Europe, as well as a growing threat to her own possessions in Northern Africa. By the second anniversary of the war, the situation for Great Britain was even worse. The German armies had invaded Russia and were driving everything before them. By the spring of 1942, even though the Russians had shown that they were more capable of winter fighting than the Germans, all hope seemed to have been lost. The Japanese had struck at the United States—thereby bringing her openly into the war—and had overrun virtually all the British and American strongholds in the Western Pacific. Allied fortunes were, indeed, at a low ebb.

That was not very much more than a year ago; and since then virtually the entire initiative in every theatre of war has been taken by the Allied nations. Mr. Winston Churchill, the Prime Minister of England, always has been a fighter and an optimist, and many a time he has had to exercise his qualities in the face of what appeared to be almost certain disillusionment and defeat. Broadcasting yesterday from Quebec, where he has been in conference with the President of the United States and the Prime Minister of Canada, he was able to look back upon a long succession of Allied victories, and to support his optimism with a basis of accomplished fact. Since the last anniversary of the war's outbreak the Axis Powers have gained no territory: instead, they have lost much of the territory which they had occupied in their first triumphant advances. Every inch of African soil—as a result of the British campaigns in Abyssinia and Eritrea, of the surprising counter-offensive of the British Eighth Army against Marshal Rommel, and of the Anglo-American landings in North Africa—has returned, or has fallen, into Allied hands. The Russians have regained many hundreds of square miles of their territory—partly in consequence of a summer offensive whereof they were supposed to be traditionally incapable. It is true that the Anglo-American Allies have not yet made good their threat of a landing on the Continent of Europe; but they have occupied the island of Sicily, which, to all intents and purposes, is portion of the Continent, and the Axis Powers themselves are alive to the early danger of a "second front." The aspect of the war, indeed, has shown a striking change. There is no longer any prospect of a runaway victory on either side. It is manifest that the real contest has yet to come, and that no further question exists of an overwhelming Axis against a weak enemy. Mr. Churchill declines to put a date either on the opening of a second front or on the conclusion of the war; and anybody who should profess to know better than Mr. Churchill would be a foolish prophet. Yet millions of people throughout the world, speculating on the significance of this date, will wonder what will be the condition of the war by this time twelvemonth—the fifth anniversary. Everybody is entitled to speculate—nobody to pronounce.

Water—and Soap

Balnea, vina, Venus corrumpunt corpora nostra,
Sed vitam faciunt balnea, vina, Venus.

So wrote the ancient Roman upon a tombstone, and thus lumped together wine, women and water, as at once the joys and the perils of life. The moralists still agree on the first two heads; but the institution of the bath has been raised from among these low associates, and cleanliness has been placed next to godliness in the scale of human virtues. It must be doubted whether, if there is any connection at all between the baths and the decline of the Roman Empire, the fault lay merely with hot water. The Roman frequented the baths not so much through any deep concern for his personal cleanliness, as because the place was one of the recognised centres of social life. At any rate, Western Europe took the warning; and, while it continued to savour the joys of wine and women, it eschewed earnestly the peril of water. It has been said of the woman of Queen Elizabeth's day that she took only two baths in her life—one immediately after her birth, and the other immediately before her marriage. The Virgin Queen herself, presumably, enjoyed only one. Through the following centuries cleanliness continued to be regarded as an eccentricity, or, at most, a formality, rather than as a necessity. Indeed, there was a certain feeling that it was a sign of decadence; people spoke of "healthy dirt," as doctors of "laudable pus." The sailors' saying quoted by Scott expressed the general philosophical attitude: "Every man must eat a peck of dirt before he dies." Noses, however, became less tolerant; and at last Pasteur demonstrated the evils of dirt to the brain also, and the ordinary man learned to see bacteria in everything. The recognition of dirt as a social evil, and as a major class barrier, however, is still by no means universal. Hotel-keepers, for example, who are accustomed to charge one shilling for a bath, appear to consider that cleanliness is a mere personal foible, and must be paid for as such. The rationing of soap has never been felt as a universal hardship, as the rationing of tea, sugar, or butter is a hardshi.., so that there is no reason to expect that the announcement of a reduction in the ration will give the signal for any great public outcry. Water is cheap enough, and the supply is unrestricted, but there seems still to be no strain on the water-works.

CRUISKEENLAWN

By Myles na gCopaleen.

AS I sit here cracking my finger joints in the diseased autumn sunshine, snuffling scratching and snoring with ever and anon a glance down the tall avenue of poplars to see if there's any sign of Corrigan's men coming to take me up to the Prospect Cemetery where the rest of us had the decency to go donkey's ears ago, I do an odd bit of reading. (It puts in the thyme, as the inventor said of his golf-robot). Give me a good book and I will be as quiet as a mouse the day long. I ask but one thing—that the page should be enlivened by dialogue, preferably the sparkling kind, and that I should not be asked to traverse at my time of life solid rectangles of small secret print devoted to the melancholy history of Ivan Petrouskaj, who in the year 18— was Prefect in the Province of —. Bright conversation and chat is what I fancy. And mind you, there's a thing that's dying out. The young fellows that's going nowadays could no more conduct a conversation in the old style than they could conduct the Ballyhaunis Philharmonic.

Ah, there, Charlie.

The hard Jack.

And how are we?

Can't complain and how's yourself indeed I needn't ask.

Poor ould Pether went off very quick.

Sure didn't I see him on the Tuesda. He was for goin off to America after the war. Ah, me bould Martin!

How's thricks?

Yerra, pullin the divil be the tail. Begob fit and well you're lookin yourself—where did you stale the suit?

That's Irish tweed from the mills of Blarney, I got five yards of it on the nod from what's his name the hop of my thumb that married the sister Annie.

The man that made that trousers be the looks of it is only after comin out of his time as a watchmaker, no tailor ever made that trousers.

Don't mind him Martin.

That trousers isn't right. Walk over there till we have a look at you. Shure they're falling off you man.

But in modern Irish, of course, you get a higher standard. Something like this:

Dia dhuit, a Sheáin (a bhean uasail, a dhuine uasail). Conus taoi (tánn tú, atá tú), cé an nós a bhfuil ort, goidé mar tá tú?

Táim go maith buidhchas le Dia Táim go maith, slán go rabhair. Táim go maith conus taoi féin? Táim go maith, molaidh le Dia. . . .

All frightfully reminiscent, you will agree, of Mr. Eliot at his best. The English translation would be something as follows:

Good evening, Father.

Good evening, men.

How are you, woman?

How is himself (i.e. your husband)?

He has the health of a salmon—a good heart and a wet mouth."

I hope he is not drinking.

Indeed, he has plenty taken sometimes, but do you know what he says to me when I advise him for his good? "God has a soft corner in his heart for a merry poor soul."

(My rural worship is touched by the implication that 'merriment' can in some way be associated with that grim and endless task i.e. an t-ól, or Irish agricultural topery. Now take Paris. Or even Belgium. Go over there and you'll see the people sitting outside the cafés on the pavement, quietly sipping their glass of wine and quietly conversing over the news of the day. Why cannot we be like that here instead of flying into dark snugs to squander our week's wages on stuff that a Frenchman wouldn't put in his lamp? What — the climate! Nonsense. The fact is that the Guards would have us all up for obstruction, and D.O. Fogg would be sure to be in the case, once more to receive the encomiums of the bench for good policy duty.)

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

THE SENATE ELECTION

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—The persistence and the volume of the rumours relative to offers of money made to certain members of the Electoral College for number one and other votes, and the positive statement of a member of the Longford County Council on the subject, suggest the desirability of definite action and investigation. The persons elected as members of the Senate will, I feel sure, be the first to admit the absolute necessity for such an inquiry.

If it can be established that even in one case a member of the Electoral College was influenced by such offers, then a grave injustice to candidates unable to afford or unwilling to invoke such factitious supplements to their normal qualifications will have been proved. There is no doubt but that offers have been made to certain members of the Electoral College. In at least one case such an offer was rejected with the contempt it deserved.

Not suffering from the infirmity of Hamlet, I see no advantage in allowing the pale cast of thought to replace action. I, therefore, submit the following suggestions:—

(1) Every representative body in the country, but particularly local authorities, should demand a comprehensive inquiry by the Government into the allegations regarding offers of money.

(2) Every person interested should be invited to state whether he would be prepared to support a demand for an inquiry, and, if necessary, to attend a meeting summoned for the purpose of appointing a committee to organise a national demand for an investigation and the collection of evidence.

To ensure that definite progress is made in the direction suggested, I would be prepared to act as hon. secretary, pending the appointment of a committee.—Yours, etc.,

P. J. O'REILLY.

Greyfort, Clonmel

BREAD

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—We are much concerned to hear of the decline in the pig population, owing to the lack of feeding-stuffs, and the consequent scarcity and high price of bacon.

On the other hand, our hopes for a record harvest are high. If these hopes are realised, we trust that the Government will be able to reduce the percentage of flour extraction to allow pollard to be available for pig-feeding.

According to the medical profession, in 100% extraction of flour 10% is of no nutritional value, and in some cases is even harmful. An 85% extraction would benefit the health of the people and help farmers to increase their stocks of pigs.—Yours, etc.,

A. D. SHEFFINGTON,
M. H. TWEEDY,
Joint Hon. Secs.,
Irish Housewives' Committee.
Hillcrest, Stillorgan, Co. Dublin.

President Roosevelt announced yesterday that the appointment of General Marshall as United States Army Chief of Staff was being continued for another 4 years.

LONDON LETTER

55 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
TUESDAY NIGHT.

PRINCESS CATHERINE OF FRANCE (Miss Rene Ascherson) and her nurse (Miss Ivy St. Helier) both of whom were speaking excellent French, were the principals in this afternoon's "Henry V." scene at Denham studios. Miss Ascherson has a leading rôle in the new West End play, "Lottie Dundas," which also stars Dame Sybil Thorndike. The opening scenes of the film will show the Globe Theatre in Elizabethan times, and the audience watching "Henry V." being played in the costumes of that day. The story then flashes back to the real period, some 150 years before, and the 15th century costumes of Mr. Laurence Olivier and the other players provide an interesting contrast with their ruffle and long hose in the stage scenes, and have furnished a great opportunity for very beautiful costumes. "Henry V." is scheduled to take another nine weeks at Denham, and the Irish horses brought over will then return. As the film is in technicolour, the editing and sound will take much longer than usual, and the public will not see it before the spring of next year.

Coupon Transfers

The position of Irishwomen who come to Great Britain with an adequate supply of clothing, but are, nevertheless, supplied with clothing coupons on arrival here, was mentioned in a case at Reading in which Mrs. Ellen Brennan was fined £2 and £1 5s. costs for transferring twenty coupons to Mary Healy, contrary to the Rationing Orders. Counsel for the Board of Trade said that it often happened that women from Eire did not need to use these extra coupons, but, instead of returning them, they often transferred them to someone else who had already used her own supply. That was so in this case, and Mrs. Healy had paid £1 to the defendant, and sent 15 of the 20 to her daughter in Eire These coupons, however, were of no use to her daughter until she came to Britain. Mrs. Healy had already been fined at the last court for purchasing the coupons.

The Wartime Loaf

A repudiation of the popular idea, that the wartime loaf is an ersatz product responsible for the digestive difficulties of the weak-stomached, is made by Mr. W. E. Spencer, of the Ministry of Foods Research Department. At the beginning of the war scientists, chemists, bacteriologists and technical experts were called in to find a way of keeping the vitamin content of bread at its highest possible level, and to ensure the production of the whitest loaf possible, said Mr. Spencer. The present loaf contained 85 per cent. genuine flour, and circumstances this year continued to be most favourable, for the Manitoba wheat—the strongest wheat in the world—amounted to 87 per cent. of the total wheat stocks at the bakery trades disposal. Referring to the wartime staff problems of master bakers, Mr. Spencer commented: "God sent the grub and the devil sent the cooks—muckers-up I am forced to call many of the wartime breed. The Government simply must fall in and help us to keep up the standard of the men now entering the trade."

The Late Mr. Liam Moore

Mr. John Dulanty was present, and members of his staff acted as pall-bearers, at the interment, at Rickmansworth to-day, of Mr. Liam Moore, following the Requiem celebrated by his brother, the Rev. Philip Moore, P.P., Westminster Archdiocese. Secretary to Mr. Art O'Brien in London during the "troubles," and courier for important documents between London and Dublin, Mr. Moore was a most popular, quiet and unassuming Irishman, very active in the Irish cause, who never sought any personal laurels or award. In recent years he had been a valued and versatile member of the staff of the High Commissioner's Office, and died in harness. He leaves a widow. A brother of his, a Benedictine priest, died four months ago.

MSS. MAKE BANJOS

Vellum, possibly bearing historically valuable wills and indentures, is at present being used in the manufacture of toy drums and banjos, according to officials engaged in the salvage of historical documents from the wastepaper collections. They believe that in this and other ways valuable documents which would help in historical or genealogical research and are unrecorded elsewhere, are being destroyed.

The search, under the auspices of the National Library, in the chief wastepaper depôts of Dublin for old manuscripts, continues to give valuable results, thanks to the co-operation of the store owners. Among documents recently found are indentures relating to property in Marrowbone lane and Townsend street, Dublin, about the year 1700. The Genealogical Office (formerly Ulster King at Arms Office) is obtaining much useful information from these documents.

IRISH WILLS

The Right Hon. Lady Adelaide Jane Frances Fitzgerald, Johnstown Castle, Co. Wexford, left £52,792 (Britain); Mrs. Helen Meldon, 74 Merrion road, Ballsbridge—£2,637 (Eire); Mrs. Elizabeth O'Driscoll, The Bungalow, Portroe, Nenagh—£6,175 (Eire); Thomas McLoughlin, Ballinamore, Leitrim—£1,610 (Eire), and Edmund McSweeney, Sergt., Garda Siochana, Achill road, Drumcondra—£1,447.

AUTHOR'S MS. STOLEN

Mr. Eric Cross, author of "The Tailor and Anatey," gave evidence at a Children's Court in Cork when an eleven-year-old boy was charged with breaking into a caravan which was being brought by rail from Macroom to Cork, and from which the boy was alleged to have stolen books and other articles to the value of £16. Mr. Cross, who said he had been living in the caravan at Gougane Barra, stated that among the books was a manuscript on which he was working. The boy was committed to an industrial school until he reaches the age of 16, bonds being fixed in the event of an appeal.

STEEL-TRACK MINDS

BY ARTIFEX.

AS Chairman of the Great Northern Railway Company, Lord Glenavy—in the Irish Times of August 23rd—takes exception to certain suggestions, which appeared in the issue of August 19th. As a trained lawyer and experienced administrator he found it convenient to express his disagreement by inviting answers to a series of leading questions. Categorical answers to all of these are forbidden for reasons of available space. Brief comment must suffice.

ANSWERS

Question 1—Apart from traffic now carried by rail many new and improved roads must in any event be provided for bus, lorry and private car traffic.

Questions 2 and 3—The costs of building and maintaining such roads to carry rail, and existing road transport might be derived from (a) savings estimated at not less than £500,000 yearly—on railway maintenance, (b) vehicle licence duties which produced more than £1,000,000 in the last pre-war year,
